Uttaradit

Uttaradit has a long history, proven by discovery of artefacts, dating back to pre-historic times, down to the Ayutthaya and Thonburi periods. Mueang Phichai and Sawangkhaburi were Ayutthaya's most strategic outposts. The site of the original town, then called Bang Pho Tha It, which was Mueang Phichai's dependency, was located on the right bank of the Nan River. It flourished as a port for goods transportation. As a result, King Rama V elevated its status from Tambon or sub-district into Mueang or town but was still under Mueang Phichai. King Rama V re-named it Uttaradit, literally the Port of the North. Later Uttaradit became more prosperous, and its status was elevated once again into a province. The town of Phichai became just a district under Uttaradit.

Uttaradit, cover an area of 7,838 square kilometres, is a province in the lower North of Thailand. Prominent landmarks include Sila Asna bedstead, the mystical legend of Mueang Laplae, sweet langsat, and birthplace of the valiant and patriotic hero Phraya Phichai Dap Hak, who fought alongside King Taksin the Great.

ADMINISTRATION

Uttaradit is administratively divided into 9 districts; namely, Amphoe Mueang Uttaradit, Amphoe Tron, Amphoe Tha Pla, Amphoe Nam Pat, Amphoe Fak Tha, Amphoe Ban Khok, Amphoe Phichai, Amphoe Laplae, and Amphoe Thong Saen Khan.

BOUNDARIES

North : borders with Phrae and Nan.
East : borders with Phitsanulok, Loei, and Lao PDR.

South : borders with Phitsanulok.

ATTRACTIONS

Amphoe Mueang Uttaradit

Wat Tha Thanon (วัดท่าถนน)

built on the bank of the Nan River and just opposite the Uttaradit Railway Station, Wat Tha Thanon or formerly called Wat Wang Tao Mor is located on Kasem Rat Road, Tambon Tha It. Wat Tha Thanon today houses the provincial Buddha image of Luangpho Phet, a Chiang Saen-style Buddhist statue cast in bronze in the so-called diamond posture. According to records, in 1893, on his way back from performing a religious ritual in Wat Sawang Arom, Tambon Phai Lom, Amphoe Laplae, the abbot Luangpho Duang of Wat Mon Mai passed a deserted temple, Wat Sakae, and noticed a Buddha's head finial emerged from an anthill. He unearthed a beautiful bronze Buddha image and enshrined it at Wat Tha Thanon. However, Luangpho Phet was later brought and enshrined at Wat Benchamabophit in Bangkok for 10 years at the request of King Rama V. Then, Luang Naruenatseni (Phan) took it back to Wat Tha Thanon under the king's permission.

Wat Thammathipatai (วัดธรรมมาธิปไตย) centrally located in the city, at the In Chai Mi-Samran Ruen Intersection, Wat Thammathipatai or formerly called Wat Ton Makham is where door panels of the large and ancient wihan (image hall) of Wat Phra Fang are kept-within the Dhammasapha building. The panels, made of Alangium wood, measure 1.1 metres width x 5.3 metres height x 0.16 metres depth. The carved traditional design is of the graceful style of the Ayutthaya period. The mazy Kanok Kan Khot design comprises the Phum Khao Bin and Kanok Bai Thet patterns. These intricately carved ancient door panels are rated second only to those of Wat Suthat in Bangkok.

Wat Yai Tha Sao (วัดใหญ่ท่าเสา)

located on Samran Ruen Road and adjacent to Tha Sao Railway Station, Tambon Tha Sao,

Wat Tha Thanon

is Wat Yai Tha Sao. The ordination hall features beautiful wood-carved door panels. In addition, there is the unconventionally colourful ancient scripture hall where the Tripitaka is kept.

Phraya Phichai Dap Hak Monument

(อนุสาวรีย์พระยาพิชัยดาบหัก)

This is located in front of the City Hall in honour of Phraya Phichai for his bravery, patriotism and self sacrifice. As governor of Mueang Phichai during the Thonburi Period, he valiantly fought with Burmese invaders until one of his swords broke in two in 1773. But he prevailed over them. Hence the sobriquet “Phraya Phichai Dap Hak” or “Phichai the Broken Sword”. This monument was built by the Fine Arts Department and inaugurated on 20 February, 1969. Within the monument area features the Museum of the World's Largest Lek Nam Phi Steel Sword, which weighs 557.8 kilogrammes. It has a sheath and a handle of Burmese ebony wood embedded with mother-of-pearl designs and girdled with incised silver casings. In addition, there is the Phraya Phichai Dap Hak Museum, which displays his biography, models of the battlefield, the locals' way of life during the Ayutthaya period, as well as, a collection of ancient tools. Open: 8.00 a.m.-6.00 p.m.

Wat Yai Tha Sao

Wat Klang (วัดกลาง)

three kilometres from Amphoe Mueang Uttaradit on Thanon Charoen Tham, Tambon

Ban Kae, is an old temple with beautiful plaster bas-reliefs over the ubosot or ordination hall, built in the Ayutthaya period. However, the name of the builder is unknown. The ubosot enshrines the principle stucco Buddha image primed with lacquer and gold inlay. The image is a mixture of the early Rattanakosin period and Laotian style (Luang Prabang). In addition, the temple features rare mural paintings of the early Rattanakosin period depicting the Jataka and congregation of angels. For more information please contact Tel: 08 9566 9419

Wat Phra Fang Sawangkhauri Muninat

(วัดพระฝางสว่างคูมุนีนาค)

located on the bank of the Nan River, Mu 3 Ban Phra Fang, Tambon Pha Chuk, was the venue where Chao Phra Fang, the ruler of Mueang Sawangkhauri, who was in monkhood but dressed in an unconventional Buddhist robe, used to stay. Chao Phra Fang led a liberation group, who gathered in his city after the second fall of the Kingdom of Ayutthaya. The layout of Wat Phra Fang includes the ordination hall or bot with intricate carved door panels. It is located at the back. Also, there is the circular stupa enshrining the relics of Lord Buddha, which was restored in the reign of King Rama IV. In addition, tourists will find the main image hall, which faces east. This was where a Chiang Saen-style Buddha image was formerly enshrined. The magnificent and intricately carved door panels of this image hall are now kept at Wat Thammathipatai.

To get there: It is about 25 kilometres from the provincial city of Uttaradit by Highway No. 1045 onto Highway No. 11. Turn right for about 2 kilometres toward Phitsanulok province and turn left at the T-junction about 14 kilometres further.

Water Hyacinth Woven Product Group

(กลุ่มหัตถกรรมผลิตภัณฑ์ผักตบชวา)

located at Ban Tha, Mu 5, Tambon Hat Kruat, which is 12 kilometres from the provincial city of Uttaradit. Supported by the cooperation of the Northern Industrial Promotion Centre of Phitsanulok province and the Office of Industries, Uttaradit province, this Water Hyacinth Woven Product Group is the cooperation of the Tha Chawa Housewife Group, who produce a variety of delicate, stylishly designed and affordable household decorations and souvenirs such as lamps, vases, bags, baskets, and slippers. For more details, contact Khun Payao Keawthong, Chairperson, Tel. 0 5544 5372 or Khumnan Praiwan, Village headman Tel. 08 7200 1247.

To get there: follow the Wang Kaphi route (Highway No. 1040) and turn left towards Amphoe Tron. Go straight and cross the bridge. Proceed until the T-junction and turn right for some 2.5 kilometres (Highway No. 1204), where the entrance sign of the industrial community is visible on the left-hand side. Proceed 300 metres further.

Amphoe Laplae

Amphoe Laplae can be reached from the provincial city of Uttaradit, which is just 9 kilometres away, by taking Highway No. 102 for about 3 kilometres. Then, take a right turn onto Highway No. 1041 and continue 6 kilometres further. The district was originally an ancient town during the Ayutthaya Period. King Rama V paid a royal visit in 1901. According to the assumption of HRH Prince Damrong Rajanubhab, Amphoe Laplae served as a secret hide-out for people from Phrae and Nan, who fled from enemy or calamity as its location was sandwiched in between mountains. Geographically, it was a labyrinth to strangers. Apart from many interesting historical attractions, Laplae district is also a major producer of handicraft products like the traditional hand-woven textile such as Pha Sin Tin Chok or hand-woven women's sarong. In addition, there are brooms and langsat, the province's famous fruit.

Wat Phra Borommathat Thung Yang

Phra Si Phanommat Memorial

(อนุสาวรีย์พระศรีพนมมาศ)

was built to commemorate the community leader highly respected by the townspeople during the reign of King Rama V, the statue of Phra Si Phanommat stands elegantly at Talat Laplae Intersection. Formerly called Thong-in, the Chinese-descended tax collector of alcohol products contributed tremendously to the development of the community and was rewarded with the honorary rank of Khun Phisanchinakit, as well as, promoted to Phra Si Phanommat in 1908.

Wat Phra Borommathat Thung Yang

(วัดพระบรมธาตุทุ่งยั้ง)

Mu 3, Ban Thung Yang, Tambon Thung Yang. Formerly called Wat Mahathat, this ancient temple is linked with 2 other adjacent temples, Wat Phra Yuen Phutthabat Yukhon and Wat Phra

Wat Phra Thaen Sila At

Thaen Sila At, regarding the myth of the Lord Buddha's visit. Wat Phra Borommathat Thung Yang comprises a Lanna-style wihan in the front. Next is Phra Borommathat Thung Yang, which is a round bell-shaped stupa containing the relics of the Lord Buddha. The stupa stands on a 3-tiered square base. The lower base has a small chedi at each of the 4 corners. The 3rd tier of the base has a niche on each of the 4 sides that are assumed to have been restored afterwards.

To get there: It is about 3 kilometres from the provincial city of Uttaradit by taking Highway No. 102. Wat Phra Borommathat Thung Yang will be on the left-hand side.

Wat Phra Yuen Phutthabat Yukhon

(วัดพระยืนพุทธบาทยุคล)

located 500 metres from Wat Phra Borommathat

Thung Yang along Highway No. 102, Wat Phra Yuen Phutthabat Yukhon is visible on the left-hand side, close to the intersection. Inside features a mondop, a square structure, of the Chiang Saen style covering the Buddha's footprints on a 1.5 metre lotus base. In addition, there is a bronze Buddha image in the Subduing Mara posture measuring 55 inches in lap width and 66 inches in height. The Buddha image is of the Sukhothai art and is named Luangpho Phuttharangsi. It was previously enshrined in the mondop and was covered entirely with cement. Later, the cement was removed and the image was relocated to the new ubosot.

Wat Phra Thaen Sila At (วัดพระแท่นศิลาอาสน์)

situated at Ban Phra Thaen, Tambon Thung Yang, just a little further from Wat Phra Yuen is Wat Phra Thaen Sila At. The temple houses a rectangular laterite seat measuring 8 x 10 x 3 feet. The base is decorated with a pattern of lotus petals. It is believed to have been made during the Sukhothai period by an unknown person according to the legend that Bodhisattva, the previous lives of the Lord Buddha, attained the state of precepts here. In 1908, the mondop, a square structure, and the wihan, an assembly hall, were burned in a forest fire, leaving only the laterite seat. It was restored in the reign of King Rama V. The intricately crafted teak door panels of this temple previously belonged to the wihan of Wat Phra Si Rattana Mahathat in Phitsanulok province, where Phra Phuttha Chinnarat is enshrined. An annual homage-paying fair is held on the full moon day of the 3rd lunar month. Contact Tel. 0 5545 3568.

In addition, there is a 2-storey Local Museum in the sermon hall, which is of the Lanna-style, located within the compound of Wat Phra Thaen Sila At. Made of wood, this museum was built by Mr. Chalermstilp Chayaphalo. There are beds of flowers and a herbal garden in front. Downstairs displays ancient tools for catching marine animals and paddleboats. While, upstairs displays the traditional lifestyle of palace dwellers and the locals, basketry, blacksmith tools, construction tools, traditional herbal medicine blending appliances, Sangkhalok ceramics from the Sukhothai period, royal preaching pulpit, ancient pulpit of the Ayutthaya artisan, Buddha image crafted out of an old bodhi tree, Buddha images of the Sukhothai and Ayutthaya styles, as well as, the arts and cultures of the northern locals. Alternatively, take the hourly air-conditioned bus service, which operates during 6.00 a.m.-5.00 p.m., from Talat Ton Pho in the provincial city of Uttaradit to Amphoe Nam Pat. The trip takes two and a half hours. Get off at the hospital of Amphoe Nam Pat and hire a local mini-bus (Song Thaeo) service to Phu Soi Dao. For those who wish to return via Amphoe Chat Trakan of Phitsanulok province, the Song Thaeo service is for rent. This way takes two hours.

Khlong Tron National Park (อุทยานแห่งชาติคลองตรอน) covers the area of Amphoe Nam Pat and Amphoe Thong Saen Khan of Uttaradit province. The total area is 278,125 rai. The forest is still very intact. It consists of gigantic canals and creeks. The general condition of the forest consists of dry evergreen forest, hill evergreen forest, pine forest, mixed deciduous forest and deciduous dipterocarp forest. Wildlife that can be discovered are Sumatran serows, bears, barking deer, mouse deer, clouded leopard, fishing cat, common palm civet, Indochinese ground squirrel, and porcupine.

To get there: From Uttaradit to Amphoe Nam Pat, take Highway No. 1045 for 68 kilometres. From Nam Pat District Office, take Highway No. 1212 (Huai Duea-Ban Phia) to Ban Ton Khanun for 23 kilometres to the national park. Khlong Tron National Park is situated at Mu 3, Tambon Nam Khrai, Amphoe Nam Pat, Uttaradit 53110 www.dnp.go.th Tel. 0 5528 2347.

Interesting Attractions are as follows:

Namtok Khlong Tron (น้ำตกคลองตรอน) Namtok Khlong Tron takes its source from Khlong Tron Creek. There are basically two waterfalls here. The first one, which is a 4-cataract waterfall standing at 20 metres high, is 1.5 kilometres away from the second one, which is 30 metres high. Accessible solely on foot.

Namtok Huai Khom (น้ำตกห้วยคอม) located at the centre of Huai Khom or Khom Creek, Ban Huai Khom, Tambon Nam Phai. There are three waterfalls here. The first one, which is a 1-cataract waterfall standing at 15 metres high, is 200 metres away from the second one, which is a 2-cataract waterfall standing at 15 metres high. While the third one, which is a 1-cataract waterfall standing at 20 metres high, is 30 metres away from the second one. Accessible solely on foot. These waterfalls are located some 5 kilometres from Huai Khom village. No roads are available.

Pha Phu Miang (ผาภูเมี่ยง) A uniquely huge cliff, where the panoramic view of the village is visible. A camping ground is available on the plain. However, no facilities are available. Pha Phu Miang is sandwiched by Ban Ton Khanun and Ban Bang Kham Pom. The total distance is 10 kilometres apart. Accessible solely on foot. Tham Chan (ถ้ำจันทน์) located within the right side of Khlong Tron National Forest Reserve, Tambon Phak Khwa and Tambon Thong Saen Khan, this middle-sized marble cave features stalactite and stalagmite formations. It is also home to many bats. Tham Chan is 200 metres deep and is 15 metres wide. Accessible by car.

Highlights include the light and sound presentation with mixed media on the life and home of the Tron people, cultural performance, sales of OTOP products, and many others.

LOCAL PRODUCTS AND SOUVENIRS

The main products of Uttaradit include Pha Sin Tin Chok or hand-woven women's sarong, local fabrics, water hyacinth woven product, canned sugar palm in syrup, local sweets knanom thian sawoei and renowned handmade tong kong brooms (both in actual size and as small souvenirs), which are available around town and on In Chai Mi Road of Amphoe Laplae. In addition, Tourists will also find Thai snack sai miang,. There are also Chinese cakes in the shape of a turtle at Mae Kim Yin shop, which is opposite Talat Khlong Pho, as well as, Mr. Maeti Pipitkul's residence on No. 76 Chetsadabodin Road, which is located behind Uttaradit Hospital, Tambon Tha It, Tel. 0 5544 0087

Amphoe Laplae: The market features various local dishes like Khao Phan Phak or a kind of dumpling, which is rice flour mixed with water into a very thin-layered skin spread on a pot's mouth covered with a thin white cloth to steam, similar to a Thai dish called Khao Kriap Pak Mo or steamed rice-skin dumpling. Then, add different kinds of vegetables and sometimes eggs. It is further seasoned like steamed Cheung Fun rice noodle roll. However, if this skin is rolled into a roti without vegetables, it is called Khao Phan and is eaten with fish sauce and ground roasted chilli. It can be found in stores in front of Wat Don Sak and the entrance of Ban Khum. Another famous dish Khao Khaep, which is similar to Khao Phan Phak but add sesame seeds and roasted chilli, wrapping sticky rice or other savoury dish. If it is rolled to wrap seasoned noodle, it is called Mi Phan. It is available along the roadsides of Ban Khok Chang. In addition, tourists will find local fabrics like Pha Sin Tin

Pha Sin Tin Chok

Tong Kong Brooms

Chok or hand-woven women's sarong with motifs called soi dok mak. Cool colours are used here.

INTERESTING ACTIVITIES

Agro-tourism

Experience the lifestyle of orchardists at Amphoe Laplae orchard. This is a mixed-cultivation orchard, where fruits are grown in a zigzag pattern. Drought-tolerant fruits like marian fruit tree, Burmese grape, and Santol are grown on the highland. While the lower end features mangosteen, which are grown under well-watered conditions, and hilly terrace that features langsat, as well as, durian. They have a unique harvesting technique by riding a motorcycle along the ridge of the mountain and using sling pulleys to send harvested fruit baskets across the mountain ranges. Tourists will also enjoy the locally famous Long Laplae and Lin Laplae durians, which are very tasty and sweet. EXAMPLES OF TOUR PROGRAMMES

Uttaradit is another corner in Thailand not so familiar to general travellers even locals themselves. It is in fact could be easily approached from more well known neighbours of Sukhothai or Phitsanulok.

If you want to stay away from the crowd for a change, stay off the beaten tract in Uttaradit to see its cultural and natural treasures.

Day 1

Morning : Upon arrival, visit Uttaradit Provincial Cultural Hall for artefacts and historical relics and continue to Wat Yai Tha Sao and Wat Thamma Thipatai to see their famous door panels delicately crafted by artisans in Ayuthaya period.

Afternoon : Leave town for Thong Saeng Khan district to visit the steel sword making village of Bo Lek Nam Phi, and the sword museum.
: For keen hikers, travel further to Phu Soi Dao National Park, which borders Laos, seeing the sunset and staying overnight. Chances are you will be completely disconnected from the rest of the world there.

Day 2

Morning : Do hiking up some 2,000 metres from the sea level to various natural attractions.
: Leave the park in the afternoon.

Day 1

Morning : Depart for Uttaradit.
: Visit Bo Lek Nam Phi, which is the source of the best quality steel.
: Visit Ton Sak Yai Forest Park, which reflects the natural ecological system, and see the world's largest teak tree.

Afternoon : Visit Sirikit Dam, power plant, as well as, enjoy the beautiful scenery of the lake above Sirikit Dam and the golf course.

: Lunch at a restaurant above Sirikit Dam.
: Board a raft or boat for a cruise on the Suriyan-Chanthra Lake, which is located above the Sirikit Dam (spend the night on board with dinner and breakfast included).

Day 2

Morning : Visit Phraya Phichai Dap Hak Monument located in front of the City Hall.
: Pay homage to Luangpho Phet of Wat Tha Thanon, which is located at Kasem Rat Road, Tambon Tha It.
: Enjoy the mural paintings of Wat Klang in the style of the late Ayutthaya to early Rattanakosin period.
: Lunch
Afternoon : Depart for Amphoe Laplae and make a stop at a fruit market.
: Depart for Wat Phra Thaen Sila At and visit the Sila Asana laterite seat and museum
: Back to hotel
